MIND-READING

Mr. W. Irving Bishop at the Opera House and Emma Square.

When the curtain rose at the Opera House Saturday before last Mr. Bishop smilingly greeted a sea of expectant faces. The following committee was granted him by request on nomination of the house: Major Cornwell, Judge Bickerton, Hons. A. Rosa and J. U. Kawaiinui, Dr. N. B. Emerson, and Messrs. Frank Spencer, F. P. Hastings, J. H. Paty, C. L. Wight and F. S. Pratt.

The experiments consisted of: (1) finding a gentleman in the audience first blindfolded and then with open eyes, whose name Mr. Paty had previously written in his note book; (2) finding two pins concealed by Judge Bickerton, one in a drawer in the box office, the other in the royal box; (3) writing on a blackboard a native word, and even imitating the handwriting, the word being "Lehua;" (4) presenting a bouquet with eyes open to two ladies, first found while blindfolded, whom Mr. Pratt had thought of; (5) playing a game of hare and hounds blindfolded, in which over a very rugged and circuitous route—jumping off and ducking under the gangway, going behind the wings and through Mr. Irwin's box—Mr. Bishop led Mr. Hastings to an ante-room where Major Cornwell was concealed at the end of the route; (6) replacing a living tableau of four persons, Marshall Soper, the central figure, as they had been posed by Judge Bickerton and Dr. Emerson, Mr. Bishop finding the characters scattered through the audience, and (7) drawing, blindfolded, a recognizable sketch of Mr. B. Ordstein on the blackboard with the artist, Mr. Strong, acting as thought medium by his rival artist's side. The audience were delighted with the performance throughout.

At the close Mr. Bishop explained his method, which was, brief, that by pressing his eyeballs upward or downward when blindfolded he threw himself into a semi-unconscious or hypnotic state, when mental images concentrated in the minds of his subjects were reproduced on his own inward vision.

Emma Square was thronged with people at 4:30 Monday afternoon, to view Mr. Bishop's open air performance. The King and Princess Liliuokalani were among interested observers. As a preliminary test Mr. Bishop, eyes bandaged with cotton batting, handkerchief, and a black bag over all, found a knife concealed in the shrubbery by Hon. H. A. Widemann and Major Cornwell, who, with Hon. J. A. Cummins, Lieut. Rittenhouse of the Vandalia, Messrs. Paty, Pratt and C. O. Berger, constituted the committee of the day.

followed, the mind-reader found the article—a pair of spectacles—hidden in a recess of the soda fountain. On the route Mr. Bishop guided his horses beautifully round corners and past meeting carriages. The committee's hands were not placed nearer Mr. Bishop than about six inches during the journey.

Hilo Notes.

The English and Scotch residents of Hilo district seem to feel as much desire to have a good time on the Fourth of July as the citizens of America do. A goodly amount has been paid up which will ensure a splendid treat. Glad to see such a feeling exhibited.

Hilo has no arsenal, no military companies; but has several thousand bricks which came here some years ago intended for a custom house; a building which may be erected, but when is the question. They (the bricks) will come handy in case of a riot.

Quite a number of the Portuguese and Chinese stores do a large business on Sunday but, as far as is known, the sale of liquor is much smaller. The law should be enforced, restricting them from selling on Sundays.

The Hilo Boarding School closing exercises occurred on the 20th, the fifty-second year of its existence. The name of this grand old school should be changed to the Lyman Institute in honor of its noble founder, the Rev. D. B. Lyman, who with his truly good helpmate labored for so many years for the good of the Hawaiian, giving the best of their days in this school. They had large aloha for the people, great and small, of these islands. The closing exercises were held at Hail church and were mostly of a musical nature interspersed with declamations and readings. The band composed of the scholars played some of the best authors' compositions in an artistic manner. There was a large audience present and very appreciative. The programme was carried out in full, and closed with the boys singing the Hallelujah Chorus by Handel, and are entitled to very great credit for rendering it in a splendid manner led by the principal, Rev. A. W. Burt. The Hilo Boarding School is a grand institution and each pupil is finely cared for, no favoritism being shown. Each young man should esteem it a favor to be instructed in such an institution and improve present opportunities. The carpentering and printing are a great help to the boys.

Hilo, June 22.

Honor to Whom Honor is Due.

A Hilo correspondent under date of June 21st, writes: An incident took place yesterday in the Hilo district which, though small in itself, has a deep meaning. Messrs. Atherion and Williams rode out to the Papaikou plantation from the town of Hilo in a double carriage, with a span of horses. To Honolulu residents this may have but little import, but to Hilo folks it means a great deal. It means that the reign of mismanagement and stealing is now over, and under the new made system we can look forward to the time (not far off either) when a good carriage road will extend from Hilo to Laupahoehoe. Taxpayers feel that the road money is now in the hands of men who are honest and capable and have the public welfare in view.

The Puget Sound Chautauque Assembly will open at Naahou Island, Washington territory, July 25th, and it is expected will be visited by a number of members of the National Teachers' Association.

Fourteen of the most beautiful ladies of the imperial Turkish harem have been poisoned by bonbons given. The coloring material of the candies was composed of aniline of arsenic. Three of the ladies are not expected to live.
